The three letters on the obverse can be related with the origin of this Gregorios, son of David, from the ethnonym Ἀλανος.

Damaged with a blade probably during its unearthing. The letters on the reverse are indistinct which renders the reading uncertain.

Ed. Jordanov, Zhekova, no. 375.

No parallels known.

Obv. Bust of the Virgin holding a medallion of Christ before her. No sigla. Circular inscription along border of dots: ΘΚΕΡ'ΤΗCΗΔΟΝΑ'

Rev. Inscription of three lines, followed by fleurons:

+ΜΑΡΙ | ΝΑΝΡΑΑ | ΝΙCСΑΝ |

+Θεοτόκε βοήθει τῇ σῇ δούλῃ Μαρίναν Βαάνισσαν

The text is not in a good state of preservation, along with that it is unusual. In the second half of the IXth c. to which period the seal is generally dated patronyms or family names were not inscribed. If the reading is correct, Marina must have an Armenian origin and be connected somehow with Baan, patrikios and praipositos, who played an important role in the Palace under Emperor Basil I (867-886).

In my previous publication, I proposed the name Ὀυρσενί(ω). In his review W. Siebt (BZ, 101, S. 820), assumes the possibility of the proper name to be Μουσελί(ω). The newly discovered third specimen completely solves the dilemma. The name Χουσένις most likely could be understood as Ar. husayn (demin. of hasan) "dear", "beautiful", a well-known Muslim name (on other variants of the name hysayn in Byzantine sources, see Moravcsik, Byzantinoturcica, II, S. 348). What is interesting in this case is that the name combines with the Armenian Βῆκενης. Probably the owner of the seal was Armenian by origin and had an Arabic name. It is a well-known fact that Armenia was part of the Arabian caliphate or its neighbor For similar cases, see А.Н. Тер Гевондян. Армения и арабский халифат. Ереван. 1977.

Who was the recipient in Preslav of the correspondence of Husayn Vigenis? Maybe the same individual who was the recipient of Pankratios Vigen's correspondence (on him, see nos. 1842-1850).

Archaeological Museum, Pliska, no. 431. Found in the course of excavations of the Inner city of Pliska by the Bulgarian-Soviet expedition in 1977-1978. D. 21-23 (20) 3 mm. A good imprint, but the letters have a rather strange paleography closer to the minuscule writing. All this renders the reading difficult and problematic.

Private collection (Slavei Petrov, Haskovo). Found in Blesna stronghold near the present-day Dimitrovgrad. D.18-18 (16) 3.5 mm. A well-centered but incomplete imprint. Some of the letters did not print or are obliterated, which makes the reading of the whole seal difficult. The patronym is problematic. Its first letter is missing, if we assume that it is a standard text. The possible variants are many, so we do not present them here. If a better imprint should appear, it will solve this problem.

+Θ(εοτό)κε β(οή)θ(ει) τῷ σῷ δο(ύ)λ(ω) 'Αργυρῷ το 'Ελικ(ι)ότι or Βελικ(ι)ότι

In his review, W. Seibt assumes that the patronym could be read as 'Βελικ(ι)ότι associating it with Great, Great Preslav, etc. (BZ, 101, S. 821). Indeed, on the fourth line after TO there is a space for one more letter, but whether it is B or there was no letter at all is something which another better preserved specimen can solve.

John Ises from our seal can be identified with John Ises attested in History of John Kinnamos. The following is mentioned for the years 1164/1165 in connection to the invasion of the Hungarians in the city of Zeugme:

"Prior to the outbreak of war in all areas, he sent a notable army to aid it, under the generals Michael Gabras and Joseph Bryenios, under whom others of the most distinguished of the Romans were placed, John whom they surname Angelus, a man of military experience, and John Ises [Îsâ], a Turk by birth who had participated in Roman upbringing and way of life" (see Kinnamus, p. 179).

The coincidence of names, dating and place of action makes it very likely that the owner of the seals found near the village of Melnitsa, Elhovo region, and Syrmium and John Ises from the Kinnamos' history are identical. The discovery of the specimen in Syrmium must have been in connection with the described events while the one to an unknown addressee in the fortress near Melnitsa may have had various occasions. Passing through there or preparing his expedition in the interior of the empire he must have written to the local commander of the garrison, the local prelate or to his colleague who sojourned there.

Adrian Komnenos, the brother of Emperor Alexios I Komnenos, was attested on the seals in Bulgaria in his capacity as protosebastos and grand domestikos of the West. He is represented as a private person on the seal under discussion here thus posing the question of its dating: whether it was before his brother's enthronement or parallel with his other positions. Provided it was before his brother's enthronement, it should be dated before 1081. Its receipt in Preslav is no problem. The correspondence of his brother Alexios Komnenos grand domestikos of the west was also received here before 1081. Who was their recipient? Alexios komnenos's recipient is easy to explain: some local representative of the authorities for coordination of the hostilities. But who was the recipient of Adrian Komnenos's correspondence?

Of course, it is quite possible that the seal of Adrian as a private person was parallel with his seals as grand domestikos!

1940. Κομνηνὸς Δούκας Ἰσαάκιος (XII c.)

Place of preservation: uncertain. A very effective Byzantine seal was offered for purchase at the museum in the town of Kurdzhali a couple of years ago, but expecting a different price, its owner withdrew it. The colleagues from Kurdzhali nevertheless documented it by one, though rather low-quality, photo, a photocopy of which I obtained. Recently I have acquired one very good illustration of it by a student from Yambol, who claimed that its finder was from Yambol and that its find-spot was the village of Karavelovo, Yambol region. Bearing in mind the personality of the finder, (whom I know and whose materials I have used a number of times), I am inclined to consider this information reliable. A medieval settlement, where other Byzantine seals have also been found, is located on the land of the village of Karavelovo, Yambol region. Thus, the bulla published here was a superb imprint, which has come down to us in a very good state of preservation with only slight damages of the text. Its diameter exceeds 42 mm.

Ed. Йорданов, Комнини-Ангели, № 18, 45-46; Jordanov, F. Names, no. 350.

No parallels known. Another specimen, much closer to ours but nevertheless different, is preserved in the collection of Fogg Art Museum, no. 532, see Laurent, Inedits, p. 434, no. 5; Idem, Bulles metriques, no. 639; Zacos, Seals, I, no. 2736.

Obv. St. George standing, holding spear (r. hand) l. hand resting on shield set on the ground. At either side, vertical inscription: O-A-Γ-I-OC || ΓΕ-Ω-ΓΙ-OC : 'Ο ἅγιος Γεώργιος.

1941. Κομνηνὸς Δούκας Μανουήλ (XII c.)

Private collection (Vesselin Pantelev from Varna), formerly in the possession of Georgi Dimitrov from Shumen, who had left it at my disposal for documentation. Discovered in the stronghold near the village of Dobri dol, Plovdiv region in the autumn of 1996. D. 21-33 (30) 3 mm. About a half of what was once a superb imprint. It seems the fragment was rounded off and holed. Subsequently, another missing fragment was found.

Well-preserved imprint.

Μαρεῖνος was accepted in my previous publication as well as in Schlumberger, Sig., p. 676, no. 1. Prof. Seibt drew my attention to the new reading. Constantine Marsinos was probably from the same family as Theodore Marsinos magistros (on him, see no. 453).

1981. Μαρούληκ Ἰωάννης 1143-1180)

Private collection. Cast of the same was sent to me by D. Aladjov from Haskovo. Found in the fortress at "Blesna" near Dimitrovgrad. D. 16-26 mm. Fragment about a half.

The three specimens were struck in the same boulloterion as ours.

Obv. Part of a monogram (Pl. IV. 114) containing the letters: M, A, P, 8, Λ (perhaps also K), recording the name Μαρούληκ.

I read originally Μαρούλη. In accordance with a proposal of Panchenko, A.-K Wassiliou preferred as a family name Μαρούληκ, as on the Hermitage seals (M-972) a Kappa seems to follow the Eta at the end of the name, and also in the monogram we could find a Kappa. D. Theodoridis confirms this reading on the basis of an excellent seal in his collection and agrees for a connection with Croatian Mrulic (see Theodoridis, D, Das Rätsel um den "byzantinischen" Familiennamen Μαρούληκ.-BZ, 100, 2007, 177-187).

A considerable number of seals having belonged to this family are preserved in various collections. With the purpose of not overburdening the text, I would cite only that of Constantine Maroulek, protonobelissimos (see Koltzida-Makre, no. 420), who has proposed a variant reading):

Obv. A similar monogram as on our specimen.

Provided the restoration of the proper name is correct, Schlumberger, Sig., p.684 has published a private seal of a certain Blastos Pakourianos. Since there is no illustration, various readings have been proposed. Subsequently N. Bees as well as V. Laurent (Bulle metriques, no. 566) assume that Βλαστον is not a proper name but a definition meaning 'offshoot', 'twig', etc., and consequently the seal belonged to an unknown representative of the Pakourianos family from the XIIIth c. In our case the first two and the last letters of this expression are preserved Βλ[(ασ)]τιον, so the problem rests.

Perhaps it refers to the same individual.

It is an interesting coincidence that we have three seals probably of the same family and the reading of the name of the three is uncertain. This requires that we should try to survey the seals of this family.

family or a similar one.

I am ignorant of such a family name. The owner of the seal Nikephoros was son of the Pavlikianos which is expressed by the suffix poulos!

Who was he? The seal was dated generally to the second half of the XIth c.

There are seals of the sons of representatives of various ethnic groups: Armenopoulos, Ivropoulos, etc. However the case here is not of a representative of an ethnos but of a member of a sect banned by the church or even persecuted. Many sources mention the names of certain Pavlikians, for example the rebellion of Leka the Pavlikian, i. e. a man so well-known in the society that there was no need to mention his name. The question arises: which society was this? The seal might have been intended for those who knew his father, for example the Pechenegs, etc.

Thus this Pavlikian must have lived in the first half of the XIth c.

2025. Πεδιάδιτης Ἰσαάκιος (XI-XII c.)

2044. National Historical Museum, Sofia, no. 24821. Find-spot: the stronghold near the village of Zlati Voyvoda. D. 20-21 (15) 3 mm. W. 7.55 g. Good but weak imprint, and as a result not all letters are distinct.

The three specimens were struck with the same pair of dies.

Σινέσιο(ς) Στραβυλανο(ς) or Σινέσιος Βραβυλανο(ς) δοῦλος Χ(ριστο)ῦ

I found difficulty in the reading of the family name due to the lack of parallels and the poor condition of the first letter of the patronym. It is pressed. According to Seibt it is R and the family name is respectively Brabylenos (BZ, 101, S.823). His emendation is probably correct which is corroborated by the overstruck specimen presented below.

B.

2047. Historical Museum, Sliven. Found in the course of excavations in the stronghold near the village of Zlati Voyvoda in the summer of 1993. D. 20-22 (18)2.5 mm. Due to the overstrike, the text and depiction are not complete. The last two lines perhaps recorded the patronym. RPARV | ΛΕΝΩ, which is apparently close to the above, but we cannot maintain that it is exactly the same.

Ed. Jordanov, Family Names, no. 675.

No parallels known.

Obv. Bust of the Virgin frontally. Both hands raised in orans. Above them, the sigla: M̄ || Θ : Μ(ήτηρ) Θ(εοῦ). This depiction was printed over a bust of St. Nicholas with only his head visible in the place of that of the Virgin.

Rev.

+ CVNE | CIOCTPA | . RPARV | ΛΕΝΩ

In his review (BZ, 101, S.823), W. Seibt specifies that the overstrike is of Eusthathios Brabylenos. His bulla is preserved in the collection of L. Zarnitz and was purchased at the auction Münz Zentrum, Köln, 78, 7.-9.09. 1994, no. 808. If we assume that the above seal belonged to Synesios Brabylenos the connection between the two groups of seals is interesting: belonging to two relatives or brothers. Probably Synesios wrote to Eusthathios and the latter due to lack of a blank or some other reason affixed his relative's bulla to his letter overstriking it in his boulloterion.

2048. Στρατηγοπούλος Θεόδωρος (XIII c.)

RHM-Shumen, no. 14989/2. Confiscated by the police in Shumen and sent for expertise. I examined and documented it on the 26th November 2001. Later donation from his owner Zhivko Zhekov from Novi Pazar. D. 28-29.5 (29) 3 mm; W. 14.72 g. Well-centered but nevertheless incomplete imprint. Some letters did not print, others were erased.

Ed. Jordanov, Family Names, no. 676.

Archaeological Museum, Sofia, no. 193. Find-spot: Pomorie. Passed on at the Archaeological Institute and Museum by Kiril Dimitrov. Before that I obtained a plaster cast of the same through I. Karayotov. D. 22-23 (22?) 4 mm. W. 10.01 g. Well-centered but nevertheless incomplete imprint. The bulla is in a good state of preservation.

The reading of the family name is problematic due to the poor condition of the first letter from the last line. At least two variants in the reading are possible: Σοτηλήτου; Σοτηδήτου or Σοτηαλήτου. I do not know of such a patronym.

I am not familiar of such a family. It is obviously not Greek. Perhaps an Armenian or Georgian. According to W. Seibt, 'tanuter' in Armenian means 'Hausheirn' (BZ, 101, S. 823).

An interesting fact however is that two of its representatives have written to Bulgaria.

 [+Ἀργυ]ρ[ός Φο]ρβινὸς δοῦλος Χ(ριστο)ῦ

The authors of the cited publication report that the restoration of the missing letters is done on the basis of a better preserved specimen found at the same place.

The overstriking itself is interesting. The seal of Argyros Phorbenos is later than that of sebastos George Palaiologos and therefore its dating is to 1094 at the earliest. It is also interesting whether the overstriking was intentional as a confirmation of a received order by the sebastos or it was accidental due to the lack of a blank. If the letter was returned to the sebastos it means that he sojourned in the fortress near the village of Tatul, a fact which the authors of the cited publication want to prove.

Nothing is known about Argyros Phorbenos. His name is not found in the sources. Representatives of the family Erphorbenos are more often reported in narrative sources. It is a case perhaps of one and the same family. And yet Φο]ρβινὸς is inscribed on the seal.

The Dumbarton Oaks Collection contains a seal of George Phorbenos with the title kouropalates:

+ΚΕΡ'Θ' | ΤΗCΗΔ8 | ΛΗΕVΦV | ΜΙΑ

+Κ(ύρι)ε β(οή)θ(ει) τῇ σῇ δούλῃ Εὐφυμία

The person of this Euphemia is difficult to identify. Her seal is private. We do not know whether she was a secular person or a nun. The rare image of St. Euphemia is also interesting (for the cult to her, see REB, 15, 61-66). The only known church by her name was located in Chalcedon in Asia Minor. It existed until XIVth c. and was destroyed by the Turks (see Janin, Les eglises, 31-33).

The dating of the seal is generally to the second half of the XIth c. and the last quarter is also acceptable. We do not know to whom in Anchialos she wrote and in what capacity, but we should take into consideration that the metropolitan of Chalcedon Leo was in exile here. It is possible that he was the addressee of this correspondence.

Rev. Monogram (IYI) in a circular inscription: ΕΝΦΥΜΗΟΝ :

+ Κ(ύρι)ε βωήθη τῷ σῶ δούλω Εὐφυμίου

The commentary of this seal involves the following problems. The monogram on the rev. is unknown from other sigillographic monuments. It is more similar to the Old Bulgarian runic signs than to the standard Byzantine script. Its text is also grammatically incorrect. Its dating should not exceed IXth-Xth c. thus posing the question of its location in the stronghold near the village of Zlati Voyvoda provided its Byzantine. At that period the region was within the boundaries of Bulgaria.

Historical Museum, Nessebar, no. 1939. Former collection of Kliment Atanasov from Burgas. Find-spot: uncertain, probably Melnitsa, from where there is another bilingual specimen. D. 10.5-13.5 (10 ?) 4 mm, W. 3.23 g. D. 10.5-13.5 (10 ?) 4 mm, W. 3.23 g. Small blank. The small size of the dies is interesting as if the text of the seal was copied from a cone-shaped. It is complete on the obv. but slipping and biting of the blank in the boulloterion occurred on the rev. The most characteristic is that the inscription is bilingual. Unfortunately I am not able to decipher the text in Arabic or Syriac.

Rev. Inscription in Arabic "al-hamdu li-llah", in translation "Glory to Alah"

According to the reading of Yafa Yusuf from the university in Sankt Petersburg Provided the seal was found in the fortress near the village of Melnitsa from where another bilingual seal originates (see no. 402 here) the question arises who was the recipient of these letters. Perhaps some fellow countryman of John and Muhumed vestarches was in service there.

The latest publication to date has been that of Stavrakos, no 97, where the previous readings and attempts at identification have been commented. A common opinion is that it is a case of a foreigner (Hungarian) in service in Byzantium.

The better preserved specimen in the collection of W. Seibt has allowed for emendation in my reading. The seal is associated with the person of a certain Κραγένης unknown from the other sources. The etymology is related with the name of the mountain Κράγος in Likea or of the defender of the Pernik fortress, Κραγκρας.

The question arises whether it is a patronym or a homonym. Taking into consideration the dating of the seal in the late XIth c. it is very likely that it refers to a patronym. The Byzantine prosopography is enriched with one unknown name by this seal.

Rev. Inscription of three lines.

Κ(ύρι)ε βο(ή)θ(ει) [τῶ] σῶ δ(ούλω) Κων(σταντίνω)

The data are insufficient for identification of the owner of the seal with a personage from narrative sources. The fact that he sent two letters to two different recipients in this part of the country (Sozopol and Anhialo) attests that he was somehow connected with these lands. His relative or proxy might have sojourned in these two settlements, or more likely, his correspondence was sent to two different individuals related somehow to Constantine.

There are other cases of contacts - direct or indirect - between individuals from Anchialos and Sozopolis, which is a matter of course.

Ed. Ёрданов, Созопол, № 2-3.
Parallels: Another specimen struck in the same pair of dies (the above seal of Nicephoros) is preserved in the Seyrig collection, no. 344, but either my publication of 1989 was unavailable for the authors or, which is more likely, its poor state of preservation was the reason why they do not cite the parallel from Sozopol.

The bulla was overstruck and only a little can be seen from the understrike due to the poor state of preservation and the overstriking. It is important both for the dating of the seal and for the identification of the person of Nicephoros so we present the data, though uncertain, from the understrike.

Obv. under the rev of the overstrike in a reverse direction. Part of a bust of a prelate in liturgical dress. Taking into consideration the preserved typical high forehead I suppose it refers to St. Nicholas. He blesses (r. hand). The r. half of his body is invisible due to the overstrike.

Rev. Outlines of the letters and lines documented below struck in reverse direction on the obv of the overstrike.

+ΚΕΡ'Θ' | . ΩCΩ.. | ...ΑΩCΠ |

Κ(ύρι)ε β(οή)θ(ει) [τ]ῷ σῷ [δούλ(ω) Ν(ι)κ(ο)λ]άω σπ[αθαρίω...]

The data from the bulla of Nicephoros are insufficient for identification with a personage from narrative sources. We cannot say anything specific for the owner of the understruck seal due to the incomplete text but there must have been a connection between the two persons. The seal of Nicephoros has a metrical text and is dated generally to the second half of the XIth c. with a possible precise dating in the last quarter. The seal of Nicholas from the understrike should also be attributed within these chronological boundaries.

The connection between the owners of these two seals could be assumed. The simplest explanation is that Nicephoros did not have a blank at his disposal and used a casual old bulla to seal his correspondence to Sozopolis.

It is also possible that it was a kind of sign in the correspondence between Nicephoros and its recipient in Sozopolis. It could be assumed that the recipient was Nicholas himself and the overstriking was a confirmation that his correspondence was really received. Or if we have to continue the fictional assumptions, a third individual could have sojourned in Sozopolis acquainted or related somehow to Nicephoros and Nicholas who must have been informed for the exchanged correspondence between the three by this overstriking.

Vertical inscription: Θ|| C-T€-Φ'

Rev. Inscription of four lines:

Κ(ύρι)ε βοήθει τῷ σῷ δ(ούλῳ) Στεφά[ν(ω)]

2224. Στέφανος (last quarter of the XI c.)

National Historical Museum, Sofia, no. 25982. Find-spot: the sea coast in Sozopol. D. 13-15/14/2 mm. Good imprint, slightly off-centered; as a result certain parts of the text and image remained out of the blank.
Unpublished.

Parallels: an unpublished bulla with the same iconographic subject on the obv. and text on the rev. but with a different arrangement of the letters (ΚΕΡ'Θ' | WCWΔ8' | ΤΕΦΑΝ') is preserved in the Dumbarton Oaks Collection (Shaw, no 1804 [1589]). Whether the two bullae belonged to the same person is an open question.

Obv. St. Stephen standing frontally as a deacon. He is beardless, wearing a long ungirded tunic. He holds in his r. hand in front of his chest a large rounded object which could be a model of a church or a casket of relics. What he holds in his l. hand placed on the waist is invisible due to the small size of the depiction, but it could be a censer. At either side in vertical lines: Θ-...|| Φ-ΑΝ-Ο'

ἄ(γιος) [Στέ]φανο(ς)

Rev. Inscription of four lines

ΚΕΡ'Θ' | ΤΩCΩΔ' | CΤΕΦΑ | ΝΩ

Κ(ύρι)ε β(οή)θ(ει) τῷ σῷ δ(ούλῳ) Στεφάνω

The dating of the bulla is in the last quarter of the XIth c. Unfortunately the seal does not offer any other information besides the proper name of its owner. This renders difficult the attempts at identifying the possible addressee. We are ignorant whether the owner was a cleric or a layman. We could assume that there is a certain connection between him and the then bishop of Sozopolis (Jordanov, G. Names, no. 2.3.).

2225. Στέφανος (end of the XI c.)

Rev. Inscription of four lines:

Another bulla of the same text but a different arrangement of the letters is preserved in the collection of the Athens Museum (see Konstantopoulos, no 933a). It could be assumed that it is of the same person but they may also be different individuals.

2227-2228. Χριστόφορος (end XI c.)

2227. Private collection (Jh. Builbuilev, Harmanli). Find-spot: as the above specimen. D. 16.5-17 (14) 4 mm. Parts of the inscription and depiction remained out of the blank.

Whether they belonged to one and the same person since they were found at the same place remains an open question.

2229. Χρύσος (XIII-XIV c.)

RHM-Shumen, no. 14738. Gold ring-seal of Chrysos. Offered for purchase as a piece from the collection of the deceased Dr. V. Haralanov. Find-spot: uncertain. Cast in gold. The round plate has diameter 24 mm and the printed field 18 mm, the circle with the depiction of the eagle 9 mm, the external diameter of the hoop is 24 mm. and the internal 20 mm. Dimensions of the letters: 5 mm. W. 20.00 g. Purity of the gold: about 23 karats.
Ed. Йорданов, Корнус, № 187.

In center, an eagle with spread wings and head turned r. Regular border of dots.
Circular inscription in positive starting from the eagle's head:
✠ Τ Θ Χ Ρ Σ Θ Τ Θ Δ Α Κ Τ Η Λ : ✠ Τοῦ Χρ(ύ)σου το δακτηλ(ίου)

It is difficult to determine who this Chrysos was and how his ring seal happen to be in Bulgaria. The Bulgarian boyar Dobromir Chrysos, who was connected with the Byzantines, is known from sources. But whether the ring is his is an open question. The text is like the other Bulgarian seals and as it seems is translated from Bulgarian into Greek.

C. Monogrammatic Seals.

It includes seals whose owners' names were inscribed by monograms. They are basically dated to the VIth-VIIth centuries, but there are some from the XIIth-XIIIth centuries too. They are mostly seals on which only the homonym is inscribed by a monogram, but there are also some exceptions where the title of the owner is also inscribed. Another characteristic feature of the monogrammatic seals is connected with their identification. It is very difficult and at the same time multi-variant. The same monogram at the lack of a parallel could be read in a number of different ways. For this reason such multi-variant readings and incomplete monograms have been included in a separate second part of the research.

Rev. Cruciform monogram (Pl. II. 9) containing the title μαγίστρου.

In connection of another seal of the same dignitary but with the title apo eparchon, Schlumberger, Sig., p. 510, no. 8, has assumed that this is patrikios Βόνος known from the Chronographia of Leo Grammatikos who under Emperor Heraclius (610-641) defeated in Thrace the invading Avars (for the events, see the translation of the respective passage from the Chronographia in ГИБН. V, c. 147).

Provided we accept this identification as possible, the available sigillographic monuments define the following cursus honorum of Bonos:

Obv. Bust of the Virgin facing, holding a medallion before her. In field l. and r. cross.
Rev. Cruciform monogram (Pl. III. 43) Κομεντίολου or Κλίμεντου.

In my publication cited above it has been accepted that the monogram records the name Κλίμεντου. In the bibliographic annotation of the publication W. Seibt (SBS, III, p. 158.10) offers reading as Κομεντίολου. He assumes the possibility the owner of these seals to be the military commander Comentiolus who took active part in the military operations against the Slavs and Avars in 583-600 along with the other military commander Prisk. He was at the head of expeditions both in northern Bulgaria in the region of Adrianoupolis and in northeastern Bulgaria (for his person, see Martindale, The Prosopography, IIIA, 321-325).

This assumption is quite inviting having in mind the places where the correspondence was received as well as its activeness.

A bulla containing the same name on the obv. is published in Zacos collection (see Zacos, Seals, I, no. 351). Whether it refers to the same person is impossible to say with absolute certainty.

The discovery of the bulla in the fortress near Novi Pazar attests that the owner of the ring was once located there. Whether he only sojourned or stayed there for a longer period is a different matter. In any case, the ring and its owner were connected with the life of this settlement.

In the publication cited above (Laurent, Orghidan, no. 599), an attempt has been made at identification of the owner of the seal Prisk with the namesake Byzantine military commander who was sent to the region of the Lower Danube to beat back the invasion of Khazars and Slavs in the early years of the reign of Emperor Maurikios (582-602) (on his person, see Martindale, The Prosopography, IIIA, 1051-1055). The fact that nine lead seals with this name struck at least in two boulloteria were found in the territory of modern Bulgaria to the south of the frontier increases our certitude in this identification.

Unfortunately, I cannot propose a convincing deciphering of the monogram. What is most interesting is that such a monogram was found on a ceramic fragment during the excavations on Trapezitsa in Veliko Turnovo, see М. Робов, Българска археология, 2008, София, 2008, с. 87. (2366A). The monogram on the ceramic fragment most probably covers the manufacturer's name, a workshop or a monastery. Probably the same institution is recorded on the lead seal. Unfortunately, we cannot tell which institution, workshop or monastery it was.

D. Anonymous Seals

We define them as anonymous because the name of the owner is not inscribed on them. For the recipient of the correspondence to which they were attached the owner was not anonymous at all. It is also an interesting fact that correspondence sealed with the same anonymous seals was received in various settlements in the territory of modern Bulgaria and it is assumed that it was addressed to various recipients. Their arrangement did not follow any specific order. And yet it strikes that the anonymous seals predominate in certain settlements. Probably this is due to some chronological principle. Active correspondence was received there when the anonymous seals were in fashion.

Chapter Seven

SEALS OF INCOMPLETE TEXT

This part of the research includes seals of incomplete texts or texts which cannot be deciphered.

A portion of the presented seals of preserved proper names have been arranged in alphabetical order of these names. The rest have been documented by their serial number.

Their inclusion into the research is more than desirable. Most of them originate from specified settlements and their data is significant for the history of these settlements. It is also implied that my possibilities of deciphering are limited; perhaps the other colleagues, my contemporaries or successors, would have the chance to locate other better-preserved specimens or would be able to decipher these texts which have remained widely anonymous in the present research.

The part also includes newly-entered seals which were not completely deciphered at the first moment. After their complete reading they were moved and included in the appropriate chapters but their numbers have been preserved here.

Seal which probably belonged to the same person but of a different text are preserved in the collection of G. Zacos (see Zacos, Seals, I, nos. 810-811): Gen-ethl-io || + exc-onso-le; Gen-ethl-ium || excon-sule (e)t p-atric(ium).

Zacos proposes dating to the period 550-650. It is acceptable for our specimen. A new unknown position or another title of Genethlius is probably inscribed on it. What exactly was it is impossible to answer at this stage of research.

2608. Γουδέλης? πρωτοσπαθάριος καὶ (X-XI c.)

Archaeological Museum, Veliki Preslav, no.3270. Found in the course of excavations of the southwestern corner of the Inner City of Preslav, square 101, depth 1.00 m, on 15th September 1992, field no. 20592. D. 14-16 mm. The bulla was trimmed in a bean-shaped application holed at one side and probably suspended as an amulet. The proposed deciphering in this condition is a kind of challenge.

Zacos collection contains a seal of an individual by the same name and similar position Niketas imperial xenodochos and gerokomos of Nikaia of similar dating in the late 9th - early 10th c. (see Zacos, Seals, II, no. 263). According to Kletorologion of Philotheos γηροκ]όμοι (directors of houses for the aged) were under the jurisdiction of the chartularios of the Sacellarion or the megas curator, they generally held the rank of spatharioi (Bury, System, p. 94; Oikonomides, Listes, 121.7,10; 155.6 and p. 315; ODB, 848-849).

It is difficult to say whether the two groups of seals belong to one and the same person. However, it is an interesting fact that a group of early seals: of George archbishop of Bulgaria (no. 1699), Pisota vardarios (no. 347) and others originate from the same place – the stronghold near the village of Ovcharovo, Targovishte region. It is also interesting who was the recipient of this correspondence.

+Κ(ύρι)ε β(οή)θ(ει) τῷ σῶ δ(ούλῳ) Νικητά.

The text of the presented seal is incomplete and this renders the commentary difficult. The last two lines are problematic. The proposed restoration μυστηριακός by its original publisher (Papahagi) was justifiably objected to by Banescu. He saw the letters .ICTE | Λ, which however according to him did not allow a restoration of μυστολέκτης, and he assumed that an unknown patronym was inscribed there.

Unfortunately, I did not have the chance to examine the original, but the published illustration allows that the position . ICTO | Λ = μυστολ(έκτη) or the patronym ΜICTE | Λ. were possibly inscribed in the last two lines.

Obv. Bust of unknown military saint, holding a spear (r. hand) and a shield (l. hand).

Rev. Inscription of five lines:

... CIA . | ... Θ'ΣΕΚ | ... CΩΠ'Α | |

What is almost certain in the text of the seal is the name, the title and the position [Βα]σίλ(ειος) [(πρωτο)σπα]θ(άριος) (καὶ) ἐκ [προ]σώπ(ου). Whose ἐκ προσώπ(ου) was Basileios? From the available first letter we can choose between Ἀδριανουπόλεως, Ἀρκαδίου πόλεως or a third possibility. If we accept the first one, some parallels are also possible:

Specimens of the following description are preserved in the former collection of G. Schlumberger (see Sig., 114-115) and DO. 55.1.3321 (see DOS, 1, no. 44.2):

Obv. Bust of St. George, holding a spear (r. hand) and a shield (l. hand). At his l. remnants of a vertical inscription: . . . || Ω-Ρ-Γ. Along a upper border of dots circular inscription: ΤΩCΩΔ8'

Rev. For greater clarity, I present the texts of the three seals. That of Schlumberger is from a drawing which presupposes inaccuracies:

- 1) . . CIA . | . . . Θ'ΣΕΚ | . . . CΩΠ'Α | |
- 2) . ACI . | . CΠAΘ' . | . ΚΠΡΩC . | . ΔΡΙΑΝ8 | OΛEOC
- 3) RACIA | A' CΠAΘ' S | EKΠP . . . | AΔPIA . . | COΛΩM | - : -

Obviously we should accept as correct the text of the DO specimen where the patronym is also inscribed COΛΩM = Σολωμ(ῶντι). Our specimen is not struck in the same boulloterion, but has a certain similarity with the above specimens thus suggesting that it refers to another seal of the same owner.

Obv. Bust of an indeterminate saint with short curly hair. At r., three letters from his name:
... || Η-Λ-Γ
Rev. The number and content of the lines cannot be determined:
. CANI | ANO . . . |

Leaving aside the fact that the text is fragmentary and incomplete, the main question is regarding the purpose of this copper plate. Obviously it is not a lead seal and was not affixed to its owner's correspondence. However, it is also clear that it was struck in a boulloterion as the other lead seals.

What was the purpose? Was it to test the boulloterion before it was used? But then why on this carefully shaped plate? The fact that it is worn by use (probably as a monetary sign) attests that it was perhaps in circulation along with the other coins. If we have to find its place in the copper nominal used at the market in this period (Xth-XIth c.), the closest analogies in weight are the cast imitative coins manufactured and spread in the region of the Lower Danube (see Йорданов, И. Ранни форми на монетно производство (XI-XII в.) в българските земи.- Нумизматика, 2, 1980, 4-16). The future finds will determine whether this plate was as a result of the need of monetary signs or was an ordinary test plate.

Another possibility is that it was a tessera which has a different purpose from that of the lead seal but was also struck in a boulloterion. The tessera usually has a thicker blank and serves as a visiting card of its owner while the same is not true for the plate. It was struck several times and most probably its owner was located where it was found, i.e. in Preslav.

Seals of the same individual as a honorary eparchos are also known (see Metcalf, Cyprus, nos. 172-173). The writing of the family name on the seal dated to the first half of the VIIth c. is interesting. Another interesting fact is the information of its find-spot in Preslav provided of course that we can trust its former owner.

It is hard to determine whose wife the strategissa Ekaterina Melissena was. The seal is dated to the last quarter of the Xth c. Leo Melissenos is attested by his seals as strategos of Anatolokos in the same period (see no. 1118 here).

The image on the obverse, though uncertain, is similar to that of Nikephoros logothetes of the eidikon (see nos. 887-895 here). This suggested the idea of restoring the name of its owner as Nikephoros and the question whether the two groups of seals did not belong to one and the same individual.

Numismatic Cabinet, Bucharest. Find-spot: Silistra. D. 18-19 (?) 3 mm. Well-centered and complete imprint. Fragment chipped from upper part.

Ed. Barnea. Empereurs, no. 8.

Parallels: Another specimen struck in the same boulloterion is preserved in the Dumbarton Oaks Collection (DO. 55. 1. 4369). It was made on a small blank but the imprint is complete. There are traces of attempts at puncturing due to which the bulla is warped. It is covered with thick oxides which renders the reading of the text difficult.

Obv. Bust of St. Michael wears divitision, holding a scepter (r. hand) and globus ? (l. hand).

Rev. Inscription of three lines:

. RACI | ΛΕΙΩΔΕ | CΠOT'
[+] Βασιλείω δεσπότη(η)

The original publisher of the specimen assumes that it is an imperial seal of Basil I (867-886) and that precisely this emperor is represented on the obverse. The Byzantine imperial seals from the IXth c. have a specific iconography with images of Christ on the obverse and an emperor on the reverse. In this case, there is a bust of St. Michael on the obverse and an inscription of three lines on the reverse.

I have not had the chance to work with the original from Bucharest and the Dumbarton Oaks specimen is in a poor state of preservation but according to its iconography and overall appearance the bulla cannot be dated earlier than the XIth c.

The title and position of the owner of the seal, despotes, is indeed problematic for the interpretation. This title is found on the seals of the Byzantine emperors and the Bulgarian ruler Peter I in the second half of the Xth c. (see Jordanov, Corpus, 64-65). Can this seal be attributed to the period when Basil II was only a nominal ruler?

Since it is not an imperial seal, the other possibility is to be an ecclesiastical seal. Then title despotes is attested in the church hierarchy, though much later.

Parallels: a specimen from the Hermitage (M-8019, see Schlumberger, Sig., p. 713; Laurent, Bulles metriques, no. 493; Инхачев, Монистоуны, 125-126, табл. LXV.8. The same text is inscribed on two other seals, but they come from different boulloteria, see Zacos, Seals, I, no. 2740, where the Virgin is standing; Auction Münzzentrum, Sale 98 (05-07 May 1999), no. 655. It comes from a different boulloterion. The paleography of some letters is rather different and seems later (Wassiliou, Siegeln in Urkunden, 143-145).

The dating of the seal according to the paleography and the overall text is generally to the last quarter of the XIIth c.

The name of Basil Batatzes as gambros of the Emperor and the dignity of sebastos and the post of dux and anagrapheus of the themes Mylasa and Melanoudion is reported in a document dated 1189 and preserved in the Patmos monastery, where the text of the seal is reproduced. Probably this is the same Basil Batatzes, dux of the Thrakesion and domestikos of the East, who married the first cousin of Isaakios II (Choniates, 522-523) As a domestikos of the Occident, Basil Batatzes led the imperial army against the Bulgarians, but was killed in the battle near Arkadiopolis ca. 1193. Basil Batatzes was probably the father of the future emperor John III of Nikaea (Polemys, Doukas, p. 107).

Basil Batatzes is reported only by the title sebastos on our seal, which renders difficult its exact dating. It could be dated before the period 1189-1193 but it is possible to be attributed to this period as well.

Sigla: The usual abbreviated form of names of a holy person such as Christ ($\overline{\text{IC}} \parallel \overline{\text{XC}}$) or the Virgin ($\overline{\text{MP}} \parallel \overline{\text{ΘV}}$).
